ABSTRACT

Statistical data are presented on tuition and required fees and room and board charges at Pennsylvania colleges and universities for 1982-1983. Brief narrative descriptions of trends in these costs are also included. Data are presented on the following: average in-state undergraduate tuition and required fees for academic years 1973-1974 through 1982-1983 by institutional category; average combined room and board charges for academic year 1973-1974 through 1982-1983 by institutional category; average tuition and required fees for the academic year 1982-1983 by institutional category by program level; first-professional tuition and required fees by field of study for the academic year 1982-1983; and room and board charges at institutions of higher education for the academic year 1982-1983. The trend analyses indicated that generally the tuition and required fees doubled from the academic year 1973-1974 to 1982-1983. By category these increases ranged from a low of 96.7 percent at the private junior colleges to a high of 140.3 percent at the theological seminaries. Throughout the period, tuition and required fees at public institutions were about one-half the amount at private institutions. The average combined room and board charges include data for those institutions that reported charges for both room and board. Over the 10-year period, combined room and board charges increased at a smaller rate than tuition and required fees. These increases ranged from 83 percent at the state-related commonwealth universities to 122.4 percent at the private state-aided institutions. (SW)

In general, the tuition and required fees at institutions of higher education doubled from the academic year 1973-74 to 1982-83. By category these increases ranged from a low of 96.7 percent at the private junior colleges to a high of 140.3 percent at the theological seminaries. Throughout the period, tuition and required fees at public institutions were approximately one-half the amount at private institutions.

It should be noted that apparent decreases for certain years were actually caused by the addition of institutions with lower than average tuitions, the removal of institutions that closed which had higher than average tuitions or adjustments by institutions in their method of reporting.

1/ Average tuitions were not calculated for the proprietary schools or listed for the state school of technology because of the uniqueness of the charges in relation to the length of the programs.

2/ Averages were based on main campus tuition and required fees.

3/ Reflects a drop in tuition at Lincoln University after being granted status as a state-related commonwealth university in 1972.

Note: (1) Tuition and required fees that were reported on a credit-hour or per course cost were not used in calculating the average charges.

(2) Average community college charges are for in-state students residing in sponsoring areas only. Tuition for in-state students residing in nonsponsoring areas is approximately twice the listed tuition for in-state students.

These increases ranged from 83.0 percent at the state-related commonwealth universities to 122.4 percent at the private state-aided institutions.

As a note, the community colleges were not listed here. By the implied nature of these institutions, room and board charges are currently not applicable.

1/ Average room and board charges were not calculated for the proprietary schools or listed for the state school of technology because of the uniqueness of the charges in relation to the length of the programs.
2/ Averages do not include charges for room and board at branch campuses.
